

My Lips are Sealed

Min mund er lukket

by Eva Maria Fredensborg

SPECIFICATIONS

Pages: 352

Was it loneliness that drove a female translator to take her own life or was someone literally leading her hand?

A strange post-it note on the fridge, a neighbour calling early in the morning, and a bracelet that does not fit with the smock and the cut-off rubber boots. Asta Qvist is convinced that Hannah Lundgren did not commit suicide, and when Robert Strand is put on the case, it turns out that Asta has had good reason to doubt the police findings.

Number two in the series on Asta Qvist and Robert Strand.

Eva Maria Fredensborg was born in 1969 in Härnösand, Sweden, and has worked as a strategic planner in the advertising industry. In 2013 she debuted with the crime novel En gang morder [Once a Murderer], followed by Min mund er lukket [My Lips Are Sealed] (2014) and I blinde [In the Dark] (2015). These three crime novels make up a trilogy featuring the characters Robert Strand, Asta Qvist and Carl Pedersen, and rights have been sold to Italy (Atmosphere Libri) and Germany (Goldmann).

With The White Darkness Fredensborg embarks on a new chapter in her writing and a new genre.

Reviews

Captivating read ... a solid thriller that keeps its reader engaged and thinking

If you liked the predecessor, there are plenty of good reasons to read this sequel!

- ALT for Damerne

Great work by the eloquent Eva Maria Fredensborg
